

STOPS RAVAGES OF THE PLAGUE WITH NEW CURE

Malady Wiped Out by Serum
Discovered at Rockefeller
Institute.

Among the small army of ambitious young students of the Rockefeller Institute for Medical Research in this city there is to-day much pride in the discovery claimed by Dr. Simon Flexner, head of the Institute, of an absolute cure for cerebro spinal meningitis, or spotted fever, sometimes known in other parts of the world as "the plague," and which, after cancer, ranks as the deadliest and most dreaded of all diseases. But Dr. Flexner, who is now in Europe, will only learn on his arrival in this country of the success of the experiments made with his serum in a number of unmistakable and well defined cases.

To Dr. George T. Ladd, of the Lakeside Hospital, Cleveland, and a score of distinguished physicians of that city, who were deeply interested in Dr. Flexner's discovery, were entrusted the first tests.

Cases Successfully Treated.
The opportunity for the test of the serum came last spring in an outbreak which ravaged the poorer districts of Cleveland. Out of nineteen cases three were selected for the first application of the new cure. The first case was that of a man of twenty-three years; second, a boy of eight, and third, and worst, that of a girl of sixteen.

The girl was almost dead when Dr. Ladd, who had been called into consultation, applied the serum. From that moment she rallied, and is on the road to recovery. The cases of the man and boy were not of the same violent character, although in the opinion of the doctors ultimate recovery would have been impossible. These cases, too, have been successfully treated.

From time to time the world has been told of the discovery of cures for spotted fever, only to learn afterward that the persons cured had suffered from some other form of disease. Cerebro spinal meningitis is identical with the "black death," vivid descriptions of which are to be found in the historical records of the Middle Ages, or with the plague which swept London in the days of Charles II. Twice within the last thirty years has New York been visited by the plague—in 1872 and 1873—when several hundred lives were sacrificed, and again in 1904 and 1905, the record of deaths for the first of these two years being 1,211.

Comes After Hard Winter.
Many of the various cases of the disease, which generally develops at the close of a long and hard winter, one bacteriologist found that the malady was undoubtedly caused by the germ known as the diplococcus intercellularis, which generally attacks the system at a period of low vitality, following an attack of grip or a heavy cold.
